

In light of the regularly evolving banking laws, it is more important than ever for lenders to retain qualified attorneys with significant current experience in the financial services industry. Johnston, Allison & Hord has considerable experience representing a wide variety of financial institutions including community, regional, national and international banks and specialized lenders. Attorneys in our Financial Services Practice Group are recognized professionals in financial services law. Our attorneys are also members of a number of distinguished professional legal and industry associations.

From traditional loans to complex multi-level financing transactions, we provide sophisticated representation at a reasonable price. We offer creditor representation in the following areas:

- Commercial real estate lending
- Asset-based lending
- Project and equipment finance
- Commercial refinance lending
- Construction loans
- Loan participations
- Loan assignments
- Mezzanine financing
- Intercreditor agreements
- Lease financing
- Structured financings
- Workout, restructuring and forbearance arrangements
- Loan modifications

The services of attorneys in our other practice groups, including Commercial Real Estate, Tax Services, and Business Law are used in conjunction with our Financial Services Group when needed in order to provide the best assistance possible to our clients.
