An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, doubly so when regulatory compliance is involved. I focus on helping clients navigate the complex array of environmental laws and land use regulations that impact their businesses, and representing them before regulators and government bodies. Whether a client's issue calls for prevention or cure, my goal is to provide knowledgeable and understandable counsel that takes the worry out of stressful government interactions.

Mathias Young is an associate attorney who focuses his practice on assisting clients in a variety of regulatory, transactional, and litigation matters regarding environmental law. In addition to his environmental practice, he represents local, regional, and national businesses in condemnation, rezoning, and land use matters. Mathias earned his Juris Doctorate from Wake Forest University School of Law, and served as a summer associate at Johnston Allison Hord in 2022 before joining the firm full-time in 2023.
