Hiring a litigation attorney is something most business owners hope to never do. My goal is to make the process as seamless as possible if you have to make that call. With prior experience representing not only companies but also individuals, I know how important it is to remain objective in each situation while also being a zealous advocate for each and every client. One of the things that I enjoy most about what I do is learning the “ins and outs” of my clients’ businesses and making sure that we are advancing toward their goals. I always endeavor to discuss both the benefits and potential risks in each case so that my clients can make informed decisions, ultimately resulting in the best possible outcome.

Representing clients from around the U.S. on projects in North Carolina, Parker Moore has experience in construction and contractor disputes relating to North Carolina Department of Transportation Projects, wastewater treatment facilities, bridges, underground utilities, mass transit projects, student housing apartments, offices, hotels, other commercial construction projects, and residences. He also represents public and private companies when they are building additional facilities throughout the United States, including the review, revision, and negotiation of construction contracts on the front-end of a given project. Whether handling construction claims, contract negotiation, insurance coverage or shareholder disputes, Parker quickly identifies primary issues, outlines the situation to the client, and

Representative Experience

- Represented national general contractor in a dispute with one of its subcontractors concerning work performed on an energy project in western North Carolina. The matter proceeded to an arbitration hearing where the client was successful in defeating the subcontractor's claims and prevailing on its own claims back against their subcontractor.
- Represented general contractor in proceedings in front of the North Carolina Licensing Board for General Contractors concerning a complaint filed by a former customer.
- Represented an individual against a Fortune 500 company concerning a dispute over the exercise of stock options transferred to them by their spouse, a former highly-compensated executive of said company. The matter settled confidentially pre-suit.
- Resolved a commercial lease dispute on behalf of a tenant after the tenant's business was effectively closed by the implementation of COVID-19 protocols in North Carolina.
- Helped real estate development firm revise and negotiate prime construction contracts with multiple general contractors for over $30 million in new development in Charlotte, North Carolina.
- Represent general contractors, subcontractors, sureties, and other construction professionals concerning their involvement in projects totaling hundreds of millions of dollars.
- Tried more than fifteen cases to juries as lead counsel throughout North Carolina, from Polk County in the mountains to New Hanover County on the coast.
